- Appearance: It typically features dense, colorful buds with shades of green, purple, and orange, covered in a thick layer of trichomes.

Source Diamonds concentrate

- What are they? Diamonds, also known as THCA diamonds or THC crystalline, are a highly potent form of cannabis concentrate known for their crystalline structure, resembling actual gemstones. They are primarily composed of tetrahydrocannabinolic acid (THCA), the non-psychoactive precursor to THC.
- Production: Diamonds are typically made through a complex extraction process that involves isolating and crystallizing THCA using solvents, heat, and pressure. The process aims to separate the THCA from other cannabinoids and terpenes.
