Cannabis House Blend Crumble is a type of concentrate known for its dry, crumbly texture. It's made by extracting cannabinoids and terpenes from a blend of different cannabis strains, typically the most popular ones available from a particular producer or dispensary. This results in a concentrate with a potent and flavorful profile that reflects the characteristics of those blended strains.

THC Content to 70 to 90%

- House Blend: This indicates that the crumble is not derived from a single specific strain, but rather a combination of popular strains. This makes it a unique and potentially complex blend of effects and flavors.

- Crumble concentrate: This refers to the consistency of the concentrate, which is dry, crumbly, and easy to break apart.
- Potency: Crumble concentrates are known for being highly potent, with THC levels often ranging from 60% to 90%. This means a small amount can produce strong effects.
- Terpene profile: The House Blend approach aims to create a unique terpene profile, which will influence the aroma, flavor, and effects experienced.
- Versatility: Crumble is easy to use in various ways, including dabbing, vaporizing, or adding to joints or bowls.

In essence, House Blend Crumble offers a convenient and potent way to experience a combination of popular cannabis strains, often resulting in a unique and enjoyable set of effects and flavors.
